

Greeks Arrest Eighty In Vast Assassins' Plot

U.S. Chief Intended Victim

2,000 Reported Marked to Die

ATHENS — (INS) — The Greek government today announced the arrest of 80 alleged communists accused of a vast plot to assassinate 2,000 political and military figures including Maj. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, chief of the U. S. mission in Greece.

The plot allegedly included plans for terrorist action against headquarters of the American mission and various Greek government buildings.

Seven high government officials were said to have been marked down for death along with Van Fleet.

These included Constantine Tsaldaris, Deputy Premier and foreign minister; Gen. Alexander Papagos, commander-in-chief of the Greek army; and Napoleon Zervas, right-wing leader and minister of public order.

WEAPONS SEIZED
Constantin Rentis, Greek minister of public order, announced that all files and weapons of the would-be killers have been seized. He charged the band with committing several murders and terrorist acts in Athens last year.

The Greek minister of public order announced that the plot was discovered on March 11, just a month ago today. It said that today's arrests were the result of confessions of several persons seized immediately after the scheme became known.

The ministry announcement said that police investigations which have been carried on since March 11, ascertained that the plotters intended to kill Van Fleet by attaching hand grenades to his automobile from a truck.

Among those reported arrested today was Stelio Anastasiadis, a member of the Greek parliament and Achilles Blanas chief communist party organizer for the Athens district.

He said that all eighty persons seized are charged with "many" acts of "terrorism" including attempts to blow up the American aid mission's garages.

The arrests came a day after the Greek inner cabinet gave special powers to all ministers to draft into the armed forces striking civil servants.

Such action would make the strikers liable to military court martial for failing to return to work.

Work stoppages also have been voted by civil servants in northern Greece, effective today, and the railway men's union of northern Greece, effective Wednesday.

Convict 5 Top Nazis

NUERNBERG, Germany — (U) — Five of Hitler's top government officials were convicted by a U. S. war crimes court today of helping him plan aggressive war.

They were the first Germans to be convicted of war plotting by an all-American court. Not since the International Military Tribunal convicted Hermann Goering and 18 other high Nazis nearly three years ago had any German been found guilty on this charge.

One of those convicted today was Baron Ernst von Weizsaecker, state secretary in Hitler's foreign office and one time nazi ambassador to the Vatican. He was found guilty of plotting aggressive war against Czechoslovakia. Also convicted were: Wilhelm Keppeler, 66, Hitler's economic adviser; Ernest Woermann, 61, chief of the political division of the foreign office; Heinrich Lammers, 69, one-eyed chief of the Hitler reich chancellery; Paul Koerner, 55, industrialist who was Goering's deputy in the four-year plan.

The sentences probably will not be announced until Thursday.

NEWSPAPERS STRUCK

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Pressmen and stereotypers on the capital's four daily newspapers struck today. The strike was called over a contract dispute. The unions want more money than offered by the publishers and fewer working hours.

Cow Saves Farmer From Burning Barn

PITMAN, N. J. — (UP) — A dog may be man's best friend, but farmer, Clarence Fisher now rates his cow pretty high in any loyalty poll.

Fisher's barn caught fire and he led most of his livestock from the blazing structure. Then he ran back and started to lead a cow from the barn. But when he reached the doorway he collapsed from smoke.

The cow butted Fisher to safety and followed its owner into the fresh air. The flames destroyed the barn.

Hope Skies Will Clear For Eclipse

Sky-Gazers Ready For Show Tomorrow

Mansfielders were getting a taste of April showers today, and they can look forward to more tomorrow, according to the weatherman.

However, amateur astronomers in the Mansfield area are hoping the skies will clear by tomorrow night when the heavens open on one of their most spectacular shows, a total eclipse of the moon.

The phenomenon, which will be visible throughout Ohio, will begin about 8:30 p. m. Tuesday. The eclipse will first be seen about 9:28 p. m., and the total eclipse will take place at 10:28 p. m. Total eclipse will last more than an hour and 25 minutes and the complete show will not be over until nearly 2 a. m.

Today's forecast is for scattered showers with occasional showers tonight and Tuesday morning. There will be little change in temperature. Wednesday, however, should be fair and mild as the rainy system moves northeast, the weatherman said.

Yesterday temperatures rose to a high of 56 at 4:30 p. m., then dropped to a low of 38 at 5 a. m. today. The mercury had climbed into the high 40's at noon today.

The rest of Ohio had similar weather yesterday with Akron, Cincinnati, and Toledo also registering highs of 56. Cleveland and Dayton had highs of 54, and Columbus was the warmest spot in the state with 58.

Thief Loots Purses of Choir Singers

A thief, for whom Palm Sunday apparently held little significance, looted the purses of two choir singers at the First Presbyterian church yesterday.

Police said the total theft from the purses amounted to $7.50. The lootings occurred during the morning worship service.

Mrs. L. R. Hopper, 1940 Park avenue west, reported that her grey plastic purse was found in a toilet in the church. She said $2 and papers were missing.

Miss Janet Banks, 491 Forest street, also a member of the choir, said her billfold containing $5.50 was removed from her purse. The billfold is still missing.

All Quiet at Fawick Plant

CLEVELAND — (U) — Only a handful of strike sympathizers showed up today at Fawick Airflex company and non-strikers entered the plant without incident.

Police estimated about 30 persons gathered at strike headquarters east of the plant entrance.

A large group of sheriff's deputies and mounted policemen were on hand in case the pickets should ignore a judge's ruling their strike is "judicially ended."

Freighter Missing

RIO DE JANEIRO — (U) — A wide search was under way today for the 1,951-ton freighter Oswaldo Aranha, missing 10 days with 34 persons aboard. The vessel was en route from Santa Catharina to Rio with a cargo of coal.

Senate Gets Pact Tuesday

Truman Plans Strong Plea

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The White House announced today that President Truman will send the North Atlantic defense treaty to the Senate tomorrow with a 1,000-word message asking quick ratification.

Meanwhile, Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Connally (D) Tex., declared that the European arms program under the North Atlantic pact must be "coordinated" with other spending.

Mr. Truman's decision to accompany presentation of the pact with a long, strong message, citing the urgent reasons for speedy ratification represented a change in his original plan.

The president at first had planned to accompany the treaty with only a brief message of transmittal.

After week end talks with his advisers on foreign affairs, however, the chief executive decided that the message should set forth in emphatic detail his views on importance of early Senate action on the historic defense agreement.

Hoover Rips Arms Waste

WASHINGTON — (U) — Former President Herbert Hoover declared today that waste in military spending is "startling," and defense expenditures are "seriously imperiling" the nation's economy.

Mr. Hoover told the Senate Armed Services committee that Congress allocates billions of dollars without accurate knowledge as to why the money is needed and what it is being used for.

Green Threatens Labor May Smash Coalition

CHICAGO — (U) — William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, says that if the Taft-Hartley law is not repealed, labor will "demolish" the northern Republican-southern Democratic coalition at the polls.

The coalition, he said, has been blocking President Truman's "Fair Deal" program.

In These Days of a Housing Shortage, Too!

Two Mansfielders, evidently unharmed by any housing shortage, went on a vigorous spree of breaking up house-keeping Sunday afternoon.

At 3:15 p. m. Belmont avenue neighbors summoned sheriff's deputies to the home of Robert Crager, 37. Neighbors said Crager was knocking out the windows in his home with a brick.

Crager was found by deputies hiding in his living room. He was fined $25 and costs in municipal court today on a drunk and disorderly charge. Crager was committed to county jail to serve out the fine.

Over on Harding road, deputies found a little more action. Officers said a man there apparently decided to set fire to

Kathy Is Dead

These sad words spoken by the Fiscus family physician brought to an end the long sorrowing vigil of between 5,000 and 10,000 spectators near the opening of the abandoned well at San Marino, Calif., where little Kathy fell to her death Friday night. The words were spoken at 8:58 p. m. (Pacific time). Part of the crowd is shown above. The scene is dominated by two large cranes, a portion of the 100 tons of heavy equipment used in the rescue efforts, which, it is estimated, would have cost at least $250,000 on a commercial basis.

Earth Turned For First Building

The turning of a shovelful of earth launched a million-dollar project today at Municipal airport.

Brig. Gen. Errol H. Zistel, commanding officer of the 55th Fighter Wing, handled the shovel that broke the ground for the ultra-modern military installation which will house the 164th Air National Guard Fighter squadron.

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn wielded a pick at the ceremonies at noon.

Fewer than 50 persons watched the ground breaking.

A giant hangar providing 23,000 square feet of storage space, will be the principal building. The hangar also will house carpenter, radio, instrument, and machine shops. Locker rooms, offices and laboratories essential to the operation also will be in the structure.

Crash truck and other storage buildings are to be included in the installation. Contracts for the work have been let to Friebel and Hartman, Shelby contractors.

Trucks carrying materials for the giant hangar have been arriving for weeks. The installation will occupy 21 acres of property to the west and north of old State Route 13, and bounded on the south by Route 13-A detour around Municipal airport.

Attending the ground breaking with Capt. William O. Ash, commanding officer, of the 164th Fighter Squadron, was Alan P. Tappan, chairman of the civilian advisory committee.

A luncheon at the Sky Club restaurant followed the ceremony. The 164th now is at a strength of 350 enlisted men and officers, composed of the 164th Fighter Squadron, 164th Utility Flight (maintenance group), 164th weather station, and the 221st Air Service group.

Car Theft Suspect, 16, Held For Knox County

A 16-year-old Knox county youth charged with stealing a car from Robert Weaver, Mansfield R. D. 6, Friday, will be sent to Knox county authorities for disposition of the case.

The youth was on probation in Knox county on a truancy charge.

Two Held For Damaging Own Homes

Two Mansfielders, evidently unharmed by any housing shortage, went on a vigorous spree of breaking up house-keeping Sunday afternoon.

At 3:15 p. m. Belmont avenue neighbors summoned sheriff's deputies to the home of Robert Crager, 37. Neighbors said Crager was knocking out the windows in his home with a brick.

Easter Mail Rush Begins

Packages, Cards Keep Postmen Busy

A milder version of the annual Christmas rush began at the Mansfield post office today.

Most of the rush, Acting Postmaster Curtis L. Ford said, was due to heavy shipments of Easter merchandise to and from Mansfield stores.

Ford predicted this was just the first part of the Easter rush since Easter cards will begin to flood the mail boxes the middle of the week.

Ford urged Mansfielders to mail their Easter packages early and not wait until Friday. Packages mailed at the end of the week may not be delivered until after Easter, he warned.

China Reds Ease Terms

(By United Press)

The Chinese communists reportedly consented to a cease-fire agreement and relaxed their harsh surrender terms today after massing three field armies to cross the Yangtze river.

A high source close to acting President Li Tsung-Jen said the communists had agreed to call off their general offensive against nationalist positions on the north bank of the Yangtze opposite the capital, Nanking.

Official sources said that communist and nationalist peace negotiators at Peiping were "moving closer to agreement," and one report said that communist chieftain Mao Tse-tung had issued a cease-fire order at 10 p. m. Sunday. Mao himself agreed in a cable to Li last Saturday to be more "lenient" in his dealings with the nationalists.

According to front-line dispatches, the communist onslaught was slackening today. Red advance units had pierced to within eight miles of Nanking and one force reportedly had tried to cross the Yangtze when the steamroller was slowed.

Vet Budget Request Cut

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The House appropriations committee today cut budget estimates for veterans by $508,750,000, but recommended full speed ahead on the veterans hospital construction program.

Most of the cuts were made in military pensions and GI readjustment benefits. Pensions were reduced by $222,089,000, and GI benefits by $244,167,000.

The reduction in veterans' spending was the largest recommended by the committee in approving funds for 28 independent government agencies for fiscal 1950 beginning July 1. Altogether, the committee voted $7,576,886,231 to run the agencies, about 10 per cent less than was asked by the budget bureau.

Heroic 52-Hr. Effort to Save Child Is Futile

By BILL BECKER AND GRAHAM BERRY
SAN MARINO, Calif. — (AP) — The world is a little sadder today. Little Kathy Fiscus was brought up dead from her well tomb after 52 hours.

All mothers and fathers shared in some measure the grief that overcame David and Alice Fiscus when the body of their tow-headed three-year-old was found lying in water, wedged about 100 feet down in the 14-inch pipe.

The announcement of death, by drowning at 8:58 PST (11:58 Mansfield time) last night brought to a tragic end the tireless digging of weary rescuers and the anxious waiting of sympathizers everywhere.

Since little Kathy stumbled into the weed-covered well opening last Friday afternoon, accounts of the attempt to reach her had stirred the nation, and the rest of the world, as few stories have in years.

Though nothing had been heard from the child since about an hour after she plunged into the abandoned old casing, hope and prayer filled most human hearts.

How else account for a crowd of more than 15,000 which watched final rescue efforts? Those efforts took, in all, 52 hours; but it would have been the same if she could have been reached in two hours.

Dr. Robert McCulloch, family physician said Kathy had been dead "since last heard speaking Friday afternoon." Then her terrified screams drifted faintly up to her mother, efforts to have her grab a rope failed, and all was silent. There was still water in the old well after 45 years.

The body was finally found on a warm Palm Sunday as O. A. Kelly cut through the tough old casing from the bottom of a rescue shaft sunk parallel to the well.

He called up for a doctor to come down the 100-foot shaft and see what he thought. Dr. McCulloch said Kathy had not lived long after her last cries.

There was sadness in the sweat-and-dirt streaked faces of the 50 or more volunteer workers as Bill Yancey, one of the heroic diggers, came up the cable with the body wrapped in a gray blanket. A black hearse was waiting.

It spelled "finis" to the two-day and two-night vigil for the distraught parents, who had received hundreds of telegrams from well wishers, many offering suggestions how to rescue the child. The Fiscuses appeared to take the result "beautifully," said a physician. But their grief was deep inside.

"There is nothing we can say but merely thank all the people who have been helpful," said the mother and father. Fiscus is San Marino branch manager for the company which sank the well. Only last week he had urged enactment of a state law to cap up all old wells.

HOPE STAYS ALIVE
Rescue workers knew they were in for trouble when a water table was struck at about the 40th hour of operations. However, hopes were kept up in the belief that the child was trapped above.

Lausche Won't Talk

COLUMBUS — (U) — Governor Lausche dismissed with a brusque "no comment" today charges that his administration was forcing non-Democratic highway department employees from their jobs in nine southeastern Ohio counties.

State Rep. Earl M. Baughman (R-Athens) charged the governor with "the cheapest kind of political chicanery and hypocrisy" in forcing resignations in the department's division 10.

Highway Director Ted Kauer, however, commented specifically on the charges. He asserted: "If a man forfeits his civil service rights (through political activity) we don't want him regardless of his politics. We'll ask him to resign and if he doesn't we'll file charges."

Baughman had asked the civil service commission to investigate Governor Lausche "and his satellites in division 10" of the highway department.

Declares Campaign Underway to Whitewash Ex-Nazi Sympathizer

A diplomatic and propaganda offensive is now underway which is designed to sucker the American people into believing Franco is worthy of squatting at the same table with us. The attempt to instill an iota of humanity into the Spanish Hitler will be a tougher switch than the Jekyll-Hyde transformation, for his career is a history of infamies. . . . But if Americans are gullible enough to gulp the lies about Franco and accept him as an ally—it will be a mighty triumph for deceit and a staggering moral setback for the U. S.

You can spot Franco's fingerprints all over the record of Axis crimes. On Feb. 26, 1941, he wrote to Hitler: "I stand ready at your side, entirely and decidedly at your disposal, united in a common historical destiny, desertion from which would mean my suicide and that of the Cause which I have led and represent in Spain."

"You need no confirmation of my faith in the triumph of your Cause and I repeat that I shall always be a loyal follower of it."

On Sept. 22, 1940, Franco informed Hitler: "I would like to thank you, dear Fuehrer, once again for the offer of solidarity. I reply with the assurance of my unchangeable and sincere adherence to you personally, to the German people and to the cause for which you fight. I hope, in defense of this cause, to be able to renew the old bonds of comradeship between our armies."

Franco's schmooching with his darling Fuehrer extended beyond mere mush notes. His aid was direct and concrete: Franco put Spanish ports at the disposal of Nazi subs. He shipped vital materials to Germany.

"Nazi observation crews were planted on Spanish soil to spot Allied planes. Spain was one of the leading Nazi spy centers. And Franco's diplomatic corps (throughout the globe) served as Axis espionage and propaganda agents. That political romance must have been made in Hell. In light of past events, knowing that nests of nazis are still rampant in Spain hardly comes as a surprise. Even the loyal rat—Franco continued fighting for the Axis long after the fight was taken out of Mussolini and Hitler.

On Sept. 25, 1945, it was publicly announced that German documents offered ample evidence of Spain's collaboration with the Rome-Berlin mob. Included was proof that over 1,000 Nazi agents were being sheltered by Franco. That report was issued by our State Dept.

A second-hand halo is now perched over Franco's thick skull—the same one Hitler displayed when he was mouthing peace-talk in hysterical tones. Spain's Fuehrer unveils the sympathy act every hour on the hour. He desires our food, our coin, our guns—and strawberry shortcake twice a week.

You can measure Franco's devotion to his people by adding the bullets his firing squads used to riddle Spaniards who criticized his regime. In 1940 the United States offered to relay shipments of wheat to succor the famine-stricken population in Spain.

That act of charity was flung back in Uncle Sam's face. Franco's Gov't not only turned down the offer but coupled the rejection with vilification of the American people.

Pigeons Beat Pattern of Peace With Wings, Humans Still Behind

The last thing I would want to be in this town is a pigeon.

This is because the last living thing in New York City will probably be a pigeon. So a man who wants to be the final creature alive will probably have to grow feathers.

Will that hard? Why should it worry a man? It has never troubled a pigeon.

As a simple matter of survival, I don't see how people really can afford much longer to meet the stress and strains of Manhattan life without planting a few feathers here and there east and west of their armpits.

It isn't that wings will make them angels. It is just that they need feathers now to get around.

A broken electric circuit halts the subway. Sleet stops the buses. A labor dispute ties up the taxis.

In emergencies like these how can New Yorkers go to business except by growing feathers and flapping their arms? After all, they lost the ability to walk long ago. But with feathers they can wriggle their wings and fly where they want to.

Anybody who can't grow feathers will just have to fall by the way. Sooner or later a man without feathers will be as rare here as a sparrow with fur.

And it will be all to the good. A sporting motorist would certainly rather aim at a feathery pedestrian than the present type, uneasy in a springy wool suit.

And look at the money a man could save! What woman, when sprouting feathers was fashionable, would want to deck herself in outworn mink? None at all. All their pin money would go to sowing pin feathers here and there about their bustles.

The big problem is that if people are forced to live like pigeons to survive, what can the pigeons do? Live like people? Will they learn to peck out a steak and throw it on the pavement for humans just as people now toss out popcorn for pigeons?

Certainly no pigeon with a sense of dignity is going to stoop to competing with human beings. If humans grow feathers and fly, the pigeons are going to douse themselves with hair tonic and learn how to walk—people-toed, as the Broadway joke goes.

But pigeons don't look on life as all feathers and fun. They are here to stay, though the concrete skyscrapers fall, and the steel benders of Wall Street bend to earth. Pigeons are more sensible than people.

You can hire a lady to fight a bull. You can buy a bear to fight a man. You can pay, bribe or annoy practically anybody into trying to muscle down anybody else. But there isn't enough popcorn in the world to hire one flock of pigeons to exterminate another flock.

In the tumult of their wings beats a pattern of peace. And thoughtful people are still trying to catch up with the pigeons.

Nine X-Ray Tests Show Positive

Checking of Food Handlers Started

Results of 77 X-rays taken during March at the chest clinic in the city building were made public today by Mrs. Margaret Adams, executive secretary of the Richland County Tuberculosis association.

It was disclosed nine of the 77 persons x-rayed at the clinic showed positive signs of tuberculosis.

Meanwhile the association's mobile x-ray unit today made its first stop in a six-day schedule designed to x-ray every food handler and other adults in Richland county.

The mobile unit today was set up at the Ohio Seamless Tube company in Shelby.

Tomorrow it will be at the Shelby Air Depot and Wednesday at Shelby high school, for both the schools and the public.

Hours for the x-rays at each of the five locations that will be visited are from 8:30 to noon, and from 1 to 5 p. m.

Thursday the mobile unit will be at Moorhead's garage here, for the general public. The unit will move to the Humphreys Manufacturing company and the Barnes Manufacturing company on Friday, then on Saturday will return to Moorhead's garage, for all food and restaurant workers and the general public.

A concentrated drive to have employees of all Richland county food dispensing establishments to submit to free chest x-rays is being made. All restaurant owners and managers have been notified that this action should be taken to aid in the control of tuberculosis.

The mobile unit takes a miniature picture which is magnified and read by a chest specialist. Dr. Harry Wain, Richland county health commissioner, said.

If any sign of tuberculosis or any other chest ailment is evident, a second x-ray is taken on a larger size machine.

Persons receiving an x-ray are notified by the health department of the results of the reading.

The mobile unit, and a follow-up x-ray when necessary, is made available to Richland county by funds donated to the tuberculosis association's Christmas seal sale.

Richland county's prepaid sales tax receipts for last week in March showed a substantial decrease from the corresponding period in 1948. Sales for the week ended March 26 were $20,457, compared with $29,494 for the week ending March 27, 1948.

Collections so far this year are below the corresponding period in 1948. Collections so far this year total $286,364. They totaled $336,300 for a similar period in 1948.

Total collections so far this year in three other counties in the area also showed decreases from the same period last year. Ashland county's total for this year is $91,494, compared with $95,452 in 1948. Totals for Crawford county dropped from $108,553 in 1948 to $95,104 this year; and Knox county figures from $89,031 to $88,495 for 1949 to date.

However, collections in two other counties in the area are higher this year than during the same period last year. Holmes county's total to date is $19,585, compared with $18,636 in 1948. Huron county's total for 1949 to date is $112,053, compared with $110,713 for the same period in 1948.

Hundreds Become Church Members

By NITA BRANSON

Hundreds of Mansfielders took advantage of the Palm Sunday services yesterday to declare their faith and become members of the city's churches.

While thousands jammed the city's sanctuaries to join in worship commemorating the first Palm Sunday almost 2,000 years ago, there was little evidence of Easter finery. Chilling breezes made spring garments a little too light.

Among the hundreds who joined church were the 65 charter members of the newly-organized Holy Trinity Lutheran church of 79 South Boulevard and the 79 teenagers who took vows of allegiance in special confirmation ceremonies.

At the Grace Episcopal church where the sanctuary was filled, Rev. Samuel U. J. Peard told his audience, "This is Holy Week. God will give you a chance to accept Him, a chance to draw nearer to Him, but I tell you, if you refuse then you will be drawn much farther away."

There, following services, palm crosses were distributed by the rector to members of his congregation.

While services in all churches were joyous it was a particularly happy day for the new Lutheran Mission, which met in the Seventh Day Adventist church. Yesterday, 65 charter members were accepted into membership by Rev. Wray Smith, and the 120 who attended Sunday morning services and the 88 in the evening gave $551.50 toward the building of a new church home.

Dr. E. Clyde Xander, Home Mission secretary of the Ohio Synod, yesterday morning brought a message of encouragement and praise for the work done so far in such a short time toward the founding of the Lutheran Mission.

Choirs of the First Christian church sang Protheroe's "Easterlude" and traditional Palm Sunday anthems.

At two of the city churches last night Palm Sunday cantatas were presented by musical organizations.

Dubois' "Seven Last Words" was sung by the Mansfield Choral society at the Main Street Evangelical U B church where standing room only was available. J. Frederick Wolf directed the cantata.

Up and Down the Street . . .

NEW WORDS

Mansfield Barbershoppers, members of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Singing in America, Inc., are humming new words to an old tune. They have just been notified that a song they have used frequently in their programs, "Keep America Singing," has been chosen as winner in a contest conducted by the U. S. Treasury department as the theme for the savings bond campaign. The song's title was changed to "Keep America Saving." Written by Frank Thorne, past international president of the SPEBSA, it was chosen as winner by a committee consisting of Fred Waring, Oscar Hammerstein and Perry Como.

OOD PICKIN'S

When Nathan Heston, 408 Shepard road, started searching for spring mushrooms recently, he wasn't expecting to find them wholesale lots. But he found a spot on Louis Bromfield's Malabar Farm where he gathered more than 400 of the table delicacies in a short time and "could have got as many more."

FIGURE PAY

Army, Navy and Marine Corps men attached to their respective recruiting offices in Mansfield are doing some complex calculating and wishful thinking these days. The servicemen have their pencils and paper out and are thinking about this per cent and that per cent and how many hundreds of dollars are concerned. All their statements begin or end in "if" though. The topic of the day is the pending pay increase for the armed forces now before Congress. The boys haven't had a raise since early in 1946.

Chatter . . .

Long Illness Proves Fatal

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Hainer Simmons, 66, who died at General hospital Saturday night after a long illness will be held Tuesday at 3 p. m. at the Wapner funeral home. Rev. Paul Frees of Ashland will officiate and burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

Mrs. Simmons was born in Morrow county but for the past 35 years had resided in Ashland. Her home at the time of her death was at 431 Bank street, Ashland. For the past 18 years, she had been an employee of the A. L. Garber Printing company of Ashland.

She was a member of the United Brethren church in Ashland and of the church's Circle 4. Survivors include three brothers Cleo, John and Guy Hainer, all of Mansfield.

Four sisters also survive Mrs. Simmons: Mrs. George Heston, Mrs. Mary McMullen, and Mrs. Otto Touby, all of Mansfield, and Mrs. Harley Temple, Brecksville.

DP Riot In Munich Hospitalizes Three

MUNICH—(INS)—Three persons were hospitalized today in the wake of a riot by more than 10,000 displaced persons from eastern Europe who staged a wild anti-Soviet demonstration at the Russian mission building in Munich. American occupation troops with seven light tanks used gas and bayonets to break up the demonstration Sunday in defending the mission building which later was found to have been secretly evacuated by the Russians.

Simpson Pupils to Present Murder Mystery Thursday

"High Window," an exciting murder mystery, will be presented at a Thursday morning assembly for students at John Simpson junior high school. The play will be given by the ninth grade dramatics classes during the first period Thursday. It is the third production staged by students during the school year.

The final cast was kept secret until today. The cast includes Sandra Nichols who will take the part of Emily Winthrop, a crippled woman, while Donald Geib enacts

Car Goes Off Road Near City

Southern Ohio Crash Kills 3

At least 11 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents in Ohio during the week end, while two persons were injured, neither seriously, in the Mansfield area. Injured when their car overturned early Sunday on State Route 39 one-half mile north-west of Mansfield were Estill Lee Catron, 30, of 282 West Sixth street, driver of the car, and a passenger, Roy Johnson, 26, of Ypsilanti, Mich.

State highway patrolmen said the accident occurred at 1 a. m. when Catron attempted to pass a car on an approach to a curve. Arrested for unsafe operation, Catron pleaded guilty in Municipal court today and was fined $25 and costs and was given a license suspension for 60 days.

Catron escaped with minor lacerations of the forehead and was treated and released at General hospital. Johnson was admitted to the hospital for fractures of both ankles and body bruises. He was reported in "fair" condition at noon.

LITTLE GRAY BARN IN THE WOODS — (UP) — It might be anywhere along the Atlantic seaboard, or the Pacific, for that matter, when the cock fighting advocates steal furtively to some secluded spot to pit their chickens in a battle to the death.

Usually, you drive down a dark lane in the country and come to a group of automobiles parked around a darkened barn. From within comes a low rumble and the occasional crow of a ramp-rooster.

It might cost you $3, or $5, to get inside as the guest of a "game club" member. There are no women, and no whisky for the slogan is: "Leave your ladies and liquor at home." There's a reason. This isn't a sight for a woman or even, perhaps, for a man.

INSIDE THE BARN there is a tense, tight atmosphere. A hundred men sit on bleacher seats erected around a dirt-floored pit with their eyes fastened on two cocks squaring off in the middle.

The bird's natural spurs have been clipped off. Fastened carefully in their place are steel spurs, an inch and a quarter long, with which these fowl, bred for death, slash at each other after springing into the air.

As they are faced off, like prize fighters, by their seconds, words leap across the blood-spattered arena:

"Two hundred on the red" . . . or "fifty on the gray" . . . or even a lowly "dollar on the blue."

THERE ARE NO BOOKMAKERS. It is a "gentleman's" wager. Bets are paid off meticulously at the end, the loser hunting up the winner or throwing tightly wadded packets of bills across the small dirt patch of death.

The blue-gray exhalations of frenzied smokers mingle with the air - born, steel-scattered feathers as the birds hack, slash and peck at each other. If the cocks refuse to fight they are placed breast to breast and the inbred instincts of thousands of years send them tearing into each other. Occasionally one "quits"—and a harried owner wastes no time heading for the chopping block in the corner of the barn with it's waiting, blood-stained axe.

THEY SELDOM QUIT. With a broken wing or a broken leg or both eyes gone, or all three, instinctively they fight on. Or they lay there, unable to move, until the spark fans into feeble life and they try once again, bleeding and crippled but unconquered.

When the fight goes on too long and the ferocity is gone from both chickens, they are shifted to the lesser patronized "drag pit" until the weary business is concluded while two fresh battlers appropriate the main pit.

Many of the victors are worthless after winning. But the owners are fiercely proud.

"SELL HIM FOR BREEDING?" An owner will snort. "I'd kill all my chickens before I'd sell one."

For most of them are individual breeds, with more than 150 cross-strains to be tried, and each owner has his carefully-guarded favorite.

But one thing you know, as you leave the secluded barn in the early hours of the morning. There's a reason why they call them "gamecocks." And you know, too, why their owners are so much like prize fight handlers. All of them are certain that "they can't hurt us!"

Puttin' Sammy Snead Wins Masters Golf

Second 67 Wins Meet By 3 Shots

AUGUSTA, Ga. — (AP) — Sammy Snead, who found the gold of the Masters with a brilliant putter, had the best name in golf today as the touring professionals moved toward the high points of the year—the PGA and the open.

Sammy, the out-drivingest hater in golf, steadied his putter yesterday and came home with a 67 in the final round of the masters. That five-under par shooting at the Augusta National matched his third round score and added with other rounds of 73 and 75 gave him a 282.

MORE THAN ENOUGH
It was more than enough to win from Lloyd Mangrum and Johnny Bulla with their 285's. In their final trips around the national, Mangrum, the purple heart veteran of Niles, Ill., had a 70, and Bulla, the one-time airline pilot from Pittsburgh, had a 79.

The third round leader—big Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.—could not whip par and his final 72 gave him a 286. Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N. Y., and the Turnesa golfing family had a 286. One of the great comebacks of the 133th masters was by former National Open Champion Lew Worsham. The Oakmont, Pennsylvania, shot a 68 in the final round for a 289 total. Worsham began the Masters with a damaging 76 and 75.

Hollywood's Joe Kirkwood Jr., son of the trick shot golfer, was eight strokes back of Snead with a 290 after his three-way tie for second place in the third day.

Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., and Byron Nelson of Roanoke, Texas, had 292's. The defending champion Claude Harmon and Herman Kelsner, another former masters' winner, scored 293's.

The victory was worth $2,500 to the balding but still-slim-at-34 Snead and a lot more in prestige. Mangrum and Bulla got $1,000 apiece.

Snead gave his new putter and a slightly changed stance full credit for his victory. He had putts of eight, 13, 16, and 22 feet in the play seven birdies that gave him the crown despite two dismal bogeys on the back nine.

Although Snead has been campaigning with the pros for close to 15 years, this was only his third major title. He won the Professional Golfers' Association title in 1942 and British open at St. Andrews, Scotland, in 1946.

Athletic Show Dates Are Set

SHELBY — The Shelby high school "S" Club will sponsor an athletic show April 21 and 22 at the Shelby High school auditorium.

The first show April 21 is scheduled for the students of the Shelby schools and the second show will be for the general public.

A group of 10 girls are also being organized under the supervision of Miss Jean Altman. Included in the show will be an exhibition of beginners boxing and tumbling put on by the sixth grade boys group.

Ohio State, Northwestern Rate Tops In Big 9 Grid

By ED SAINSBURY
CHICAGO — (UP) — Ohio State and Northwestern in the Big Nine and those perennial powers from Notre Dame topped the midwest's football forecast today on the basis of spring practice results.

Northwestern, second to Michigan last fall, went to the Rose Bowl. But the Wildcats, with 10 regulars back from the bowl-winning team, have an abundance of good freshmen to fill the gaps in the reserves and with Bob Voights directing a variable "T" offense, the Wildcats would well come up with the league crown.

Ohio State, which finished with three wins and three losses in conference play in 1948, has only eight regulars. But the freshmen team last year had all state men for every position and some of them weren't good enough to hold a starting position on a team which campus observers rate as perhaps the greatest ever on the Columbus campus.

Sophomore Vic Janowicz comes to Coach Wes Fesler with a pre-season rating as the greatest back to hit the Big Nine in more than a decade. Should he come even close to that ability, the Bucks should be in for the bowl and close for the championship.

Michigan, undefeated for more than two years, still has two crack sophomore backs, Chuck Ortmann and Leo Koceski. But the Wolverines may suffer from lack of reserves and perhaps a trifle in quality. At least a league defeat seems imminent and a defeat probably will mean the loss of the championship.

BACK PROBLEMS
Minnesota again will have backfield problems to go with a terrific line built around Leo Normellini. Bernie Bierman has hopes for some of his freshmen backs, notably Dick May, George Hudak and Dick Gregory, but unless two or all three of these players come through, it'll be a long hard mediocre year at Minneapolis.

Mayor to Talk At Cage Fete

BUCCYRUS — Guest speaker at a banquet honoring Buckyrus high school's championship basketball team will be Mayor James A. Rhodes of Columbus. The banquet will be held at the Moose home here on Friday night, April 29, with the affair being sponsored jointly by the local Lions and Redmen's clubs.

Approximately 300 tickets will be available from members of either club. A similar banquet was held last fall for the football team, which won the Northern Ohio League championship.

The basketball team also captured the NOL title and lost only one game during the regular playing season. In tournament play it was defeated by Mansfield Senior high and Findlay.

Colony Five Takes Lead In Bowling

The Mansfield Colony all-boys bowling team took the lead in the first round of the jackpot tournament rolled yesterday at Mt. Vernon by the Central Ohio Ladies league.

Sparked by Sue Humphrey's 578, the Colony bowlers turned in a 2610 score to edge out the 2596 of Newark Housing corporation. Mt. Vernon had 2387 and Zanesville 2367 for third and fourth places.

Humphrey had games of 152, 217 and 209 in rolling the second best individual score in the league. Lucille Hartman of Newark posted 202-198-202—602. Other Mansfield scores were: Helen Wilhelm 532, Billie Cleckner 509, Donna Schuster 492, and Dot McDewitt 448.

The tournament will finish April 24 at Newark.

Zahn's Construction also had a fine time for itself against out-of-town competition. Zahn's competed against two opponents in NCOT league matches at Richmond Recreation and won five of six games. It swept three from Haven's Marine Sales Fremont and won the first two from the Port Clinton Candy company.

Team balance rather than individual effort did the work for Zahn's as only one outstanding score was rolled. Hal LeMunyon, rolling in the anchor spot, counted 221-233-182—636 against the Port Clinton team. Nick Weber had 589 in the same match.

Emmett McFaire and Jake Streitmaster shared honors in the Sons of Herman league as Emmett had the top series, 595, and Jake topped the single game list with 243.

Joe Hetler sr., rolled 588, Jack Gaubatz had 571, and M. Rachel, 517.

Carmel led Women of the Moose with a 443 score. She was closely followed by Christine Au, 437; Zahn, 413; and Mary DeCapio, 403.

No Swearing In O-I League

LIMA — (M) — Players and managers will have to curb their tongues if they want to stay on the diamond in the Ohio-Indiana class D baseball league this season.

President Frank Colley told the annual spring meeting of league directors yesterday umpires would be instructed to send swearing men to the showers.

"Arguments are expected over close decisions," Colley said, "but they are not to be long and drawn out, nor are profane or obscene language or threatening gestures to be used."

National Loop Race Between Six Teams

By JACK HAND
ATLANTA, Ga. — (M) — The National league race figures to be a wide open 6-team battle with the Brooklyn Dodgers having the best chance to win the pennant.

Only Philadelphia and Cincinnati appear out of it. All the others, including the Chicago Cubs, last in 1948, rate a tumble. Pittsburgh, the big surprise of last year, could very well nip the Dodgers.

Here's the way the finish looks, to the writer, a week before the opener:

1. Brooklyn,
2. Pittsburgh,
3. Boston,
4. St. Louis,
5. Chicago,
6. New York,
7. Philadelphia,
8. Cincinnati.

Most National league managers call 1949 "the year of the big ifs." Uncertain factors such as Ewell Blackwell's physical condition, Whitey Kurowski's sore arm and the comebacks of Pete Reiser and Jim Russell can upset all calculations.

The sale or trade of a single regular player could tumble the delicate balance in President Ford Frick's wheel.

Despite their third-place finish, behind the champion Boston Braves and St. Louis Cards, it looks like the Dodgers for the pennant from this corner.

Brooklyn has no sure 20-game winner like Boston's Johnny Sain but in Ralph Branca and Rex Barney, they have a pair who can be tops. Manager Burt Shotton's pitching with Joe Hatten, Preacher Roe, Harry Taylor and young Carl Erskine to back up the Branca-Barney combination, rates with the best.

Perhaps St. Louis has a little more class but its pitching staff is strictly southpaw.

PIRATES STRONGER
Bill Meyer may be cooking up the surprise of the year for Pittsburgh. He made the experts look bad last year by leading the underrated Pirates into fourth place. Off season deals for pitchers Murry Dickson, Hugh Casey and Bob Muncie strengthened the club. Meyer says the improvement is 25 per cent.

Picking last year's pennant winner for third place is risky business. Manager Billy Southworth has the same club that won in '48 with the addition of Pete Reiser, veteran Dodger.

For the Braves it's still Sain and Warren Spain as the one-two pitching punch. Vern Bickford, Bill Voiselle and possibly young John Antonelli, the bonus kid who has been hit hard this spring, round out the staff of starters.

Once again, St. Louis has the best regular lineup in the league but there will be too many days when the aging regulars won't be in there. It's a good club that is getting old and weak in reserves.

McMullen Gets 317 In Head Pin

Chuck McMullen proved yesterday that he belongs in the News-Journal Head Pin top ten and no doubt about it.

Holder of a tie for tenth place in Class A for some time, McMullen was dislodged Saturday night. So yesterday he went back for his second chance and etched his name right back on the list.

He scored 115-101-101—317 yesterday to take over sixth place and make himself reasonably sure of holding a leading position at the tourney's end. He had 304 in his first effort in the opening phase of the joust. Each contestant is allowed to enter twice.

Rolling along with McMullen apparently gave the striking fever to Joe DeYarmon. Joe tossed 104-103-109—306 to take over seventh spot. Skeets Wolfe competed at the same time but had only 305 as compared to an earlier 311 which holds the eighth spot for him.

Only other change in the standings was in Class B. Don Hipp rolled into a four-way tie for fourth place. Hipp scored 102-104-110—316 to put him in a deadlock with Fred Miller, Hank Heiser and Nick Komjenovich.

Other scores rolled yesterday include:

MEN'S CLASS A—Adam Karbala, 263; Joe Linn, 262 and 287; Felix Vogel, 252.
MEN'S CLASS B—Bill Huck, 286; Joe Heiser, 292.
NEWS CLASS C—Kent Beam, 238; Wade Clow, 268 and 282; Joe Callender, 253; John Speck, 248; Mick Roberts, 110; Dominic Augustine, 277.
WOMEN'S CLASS A—Vi Hipp, 156.
WOMEN'S CLASS B—Betty DeYarmon, 227.
WOMEN'S CLASS C—Violo Lelle, 195; Marie Shry, 180; Raydene Lee, 206; Helen Callender, 177.

Artie Levine Favored In Cleveland Battle

CLEVELAND — (M) — Artie Levine of Brooklyn was a 3-2 favorite to win his 10-round light heavyweight bout at the arena tonight against Dick Wagner of Portland, Ore.

Chuck Hunter of Cleveland is the 8-5 bettor's choice to take the 10-round semi-final from Chubby Wright of Reading, Pa.

B Vitamin Complex Might Hold Secret of Longer Life

NEW YORK.—(AP)—One of the B vitamins might help people live longer.

Its name is pantothenic acid. Meats and green leafy vegetables are good suppliers of it.

This substance seems to be one of the secrets of long life in queen bees. It also makes fruit flies live 25 per cent longer.

No one is yet suggesting that humans take pills of this vitamin to increase their life span. It isn't known whether it would do anything for humans. It isn't even clear whether humans need the vitamin at all. Scientists are trying to find out.

One reason for their interest is tests made on fruit flies, says Nutrition Reviews, publication of the Nutrition Foundation, Inc. That grew out of studies of bees.

The queen bee lives about five years, or 20 times longer than worker bees. Part of the secret of her long life seems to be the royal jelly fed to her by worker bees. The jelly is secreted by glands of the worker bees.

The jelly is rich in pantothenic acid, and in some other vitamins, including pyridoxine and biotin. They are also B-complex vitamins.

Dr. T. S. Gardner studied the jelly to see what things in it might make the queen bee live so long. He fed fruit flies on the different ingredients.

Fruit flies getting the pantothenic acid lived 27.9 per cent longer. Those getting pyridoxine lived 10.5 per cent longer. Biotin didn't seem to have any effect. Another substance not in the jelly, sodium yeast nucleate boosted their life span by 11 per cent.

If the fruit flies got all four of these things together they lived nearly 47 per cent longer. Why they lived longer is a puzzle.

Other tests indicate that pantothenic acid is important for good health in animals, said Dr. Charles Glen King, scientific director of the Nutrition foundation. Reasoning from that scientists think it also is important for humans. Until they can learn what it does, a vitamin for longer human life has to remain just a possibility.

Scholarship Tests Given

By JANET NEAL and JANISE SMITH

Students in the upper fourth of the ninth grade at Johnny Appleseed junior high school took preliminary district scholarship tests Friday.

The tests were given in general science, algebra, English, French and Latin. The three high-scoring students in each subject will go to Wooster next month to compete for state honors.

An assembly program, featuring a marionette show, "Robin Hood," will be given Friday. The program was originally scheduled for April 5, but was postponed.

The girls' all-star basketball team defeated the Simpson all-stars, 22-8, Wednesday. Nancy Ward was high scorer for Appleseed with 14 points. Dorothy Elissasser and Diana Hale played at forward positions and Nelaura Orr and Nancilee Clark were guards in the game. The half-time score was 14-1.

Room 204 defeated Room 205 for the championship in the last game played by the girls of the ninth grade. High scorer for the ninth grade was Nancy Ward with 29 points. The eighth grade home rooms still have several games to play. Rooms 113, 104, and 211 all are tied for first place at the present time.

Vet Trainee Change Listed.

Major changes in the leave policies for veterans in training at a below-college level, were announced today by G. D. Weidemaier, Mansfield Veterans Administration office manager.

Vets' leaves of absence, which affect subsistence payments to the veteran, now are matter strictly between the school or shop and the ex-GI.

Under the new policy, trainees are allowed to apply to the VA for 15 days leave at the end of their training, plus accrued leave during the training, with all other leaves to be granted by the training institution, Weidemaier said.

Weidemaier emphasized the fact that all schools, including colleges, still must notify the VA office of any interruptions in a veteran's training.

Boy Can't Find Name For His Pet

Kiddies' Book at Library Gives Answer

By Library Staff Member
NAME FOR KITTY, by Phil McGinley, is the story of the trouble a little boy had finding a name for his new pet. The book is among new stories for children available at the Mansfield Public library.

The little boy asks his mother, a cow, and a duck for suggestions, but doesn't get much help. The author finally reveals the name the boy chooses.

SEVEN SNEEZES, by Olga Cabral, is a nonsense story about a very amazing old clothes man who sneezed everything topsy-turvy. He sneezed a little girl's pigtails off. He sneezed a dog's bark into a cat, and a rabbit's ears onto the dog's head. In fact, when he sneezed anything could happen. The pictures are as silly as the story and the whole thing is a lot of fun.

SUPERSTITION OR SCIENCE, by Bertha Parker, may upset some people. Do you think that snakes will dance to music? If you do, this book will upset you. Do you believe in four-leaf clovers? Do you think Friday affects your luck? Do you know the difference between superstition and science? This book will help you to know. Miss Parker tells about some old superstitions, how they came to be and how science has proved that they are nonsense. The book is short and has several illustrations.

MAGIC WAND OF SCIENCE, by Eugene Nelson, is partly a story of scientific miracles through the ages and partly the story behind some of the things we use today. The chapter on "Hollywood witchcraft" is interesting because it tells how the movie makers make the scene effects. Another chapter which sounds interesting is "Eighteen kinds of water".

HOW TO MAKE THINGS
A practical book is Ray Maran's PLAYTHINGS FOR INDOOR AND OUTDOOR FUN. The first chapters tell what tools and materials you need and make some general suggestions about working. Under the heading "Indoor Fun" are directions for making ships, musical instruments, telegraph sets, railroads and equipment, and gardens. Under "Outdoor Fun" are ideas for coasters, a unicycle, kites of all kinds, aquaplanes, games for groups and even a hot weather shower bath using a garden hose. It's a treasure trove of ideas.

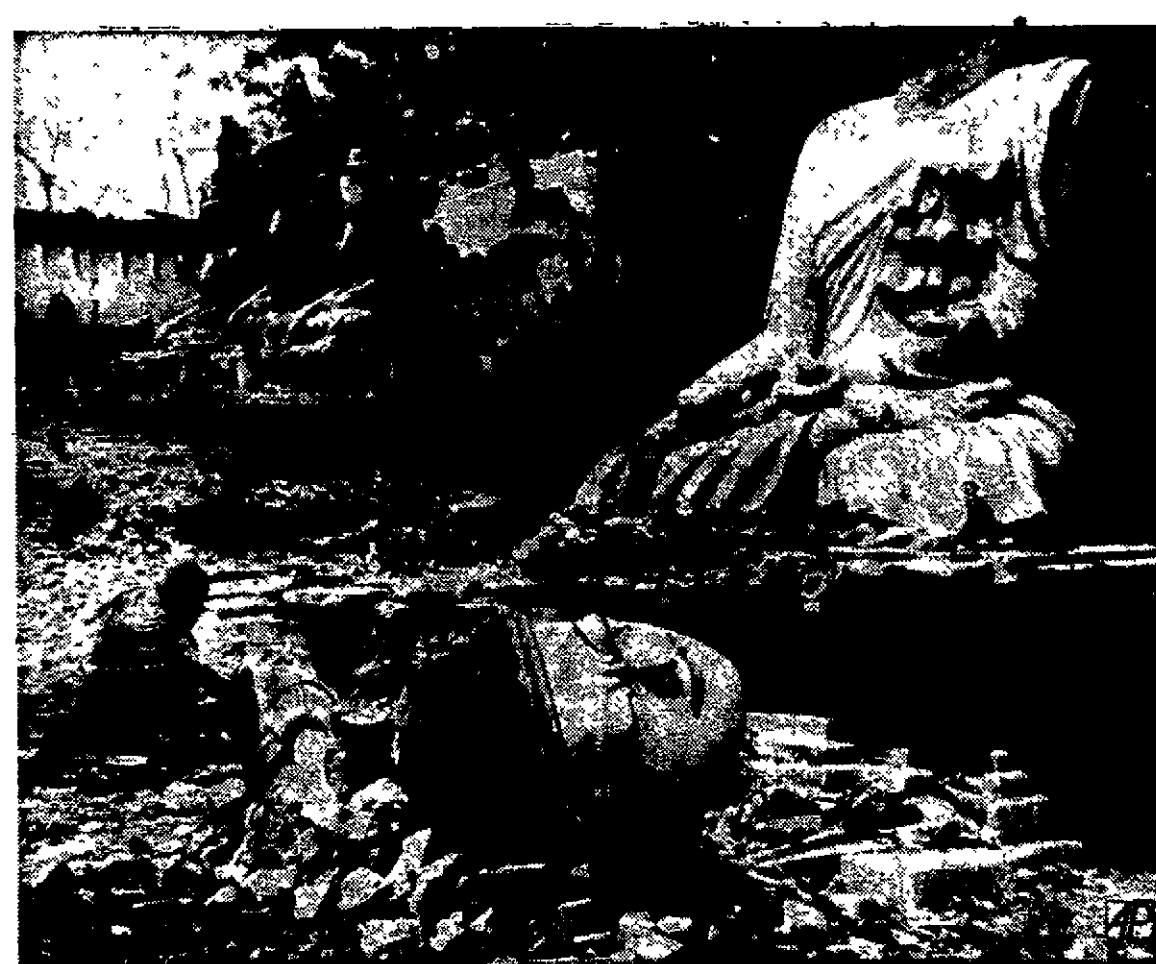

Ruth Seeger's AMERICAN FOLK SONGS FOR CHILDREN is an unusually fine book with a wide collection of old songs for boys and girls. There are chapters for adults to read on the use of folksongs, their development, problems in making the book etc. Anyone, from six to sixty, will find something useful and pleasant in the book.

The songs are just right for campfire singing this summer.

For older boys there is CHUCK MARTINEZ, by Priscilla Holton. Chuck, half Mexican and half American, had been to school in Ohio. His father sent for him to spend a year in Mexico with him. In the first week Chuck got himself drugged and left stranded with his money all stolen. He saw everyone in Mexico, it seemed, except his father who was mysteriously absent. Chuck overheard a conversation and learned that his father was a prisoner of Mexico's most noted and dangerous bandit. He trailed his father right to the bandit's den, and there comes a surprise ending to end all surprise endings.

For older girls LOST TREASURE TRAIL, by Marguerite Aspinwall, is good. A family group start out on a simple vacation trip, find a treasure, an abandoned mine, a movie crew, a movie star, and all sorts of people and happenings.

Steel Output Slackens In Face Of Lower Demands, Price Cuts

CLEVELAND — (UP) — Reductions in steel output and steel prices reflect the slackening demand and pressures for lower prices, the magazine Steel reported today.

Steel said salesmen are once again "beating the bushes" for business as many customers turned down full allocations under the quota system and resale offerings appeared frequently.

A greater interest in forward commitments, beyond the present quarter, was noted and Steel said that some trade authorities predicted a drop in ingot production to 90 per cent or lower by early May.

Supply loosened all along the line last week even in such tight items as galvanized sheets and reinforcing steel. Steel noted predictions made in the trade that supply and demand balance will be struck in many major products before the end of the second quarter. The steel quota system for distribution is likely to go by the boards in the light of the easier supply situation, Steel observed.

Steel's arithmetical price composites reflected the weaker price tone of the market. Finished steel slumped to $94.91 from $98.68 the preceding week, similarly semifinished steel declined to $89.02 from $90.14.

The scrap market was down to $25.58, from $30.33 the preceding week as compared with $40.42 for a year ago last week.

Steel said the decline in the steel making scrap was without

8 Millions See Film About Christ

Holy Week Brings Peak Audience

NEW YORK — (AP) — Twenty-three years ago the great master of the spectacle, Cecil B. De Mille, completed a motion picture. This week that movie probably will be the most widely shown film in the world.

It will be screened in 65 theaters in the metropolitan New York area alone. It will play in Europe, in Japan, China, the Philippine Islands. Mennonites will show it at their meetings, missionaries will screen it in Liberia's jungles, priests will project it from trailers in the Tennessee hills.

The film is "The King of Kings," the story of the life, passion and death of Christ. It's estimated to have been seen by close to 800,000,000 people since its world premiere in 1927.

In the last weeks of Lent, use of its 600 prints in circulation reach a peak. "King of Kings" committees of clergymen in 85 cities are sponsoring its showing in their local theaters this year. The film is solidly booked for runs in many neighborhood movie houses in big cities. It is being featured at "one night shows" in hundreds of church halls across the country.

One Philadelphia theater will show it on Good Friday, as it has for the last 20 years. It will be part of the Easter Sunday program in all 12 veterans administration hospitals in the Dallas district.

Alan F. Martin, vice president of the Cinema Corporation of America, who directs the film's distribution around the world, says there are few countries which have not seen "The King of Kings." Although it has the endorsement of all major Christian religions and denominations, it has had to fight bans in odd places, however.

Weathermen Face Frigid Duty Tour

LONDON — (AP) — Lord Listowel, minister of state for colonial affairs, yesterday asked 11 British weathermen stranded on the rim of the Antarctic to go about their work with "vigor and courage."

The men are iced in at Stonington island, one of the bleak Falklands.

The colonial office decided that it will be impossible to relieve them this season.

In England, a law against displaying any member of the Holy Trinity in a place of public amusement at first prevented its showing there. De Mille's representatives asked six bishops of the Church of England to see it privately and finally got permission to screen the film for the public.

The same rule against theatrical showings was invoked in the Union of South Africa. Martin got around it by leasing the rights to the Catholic Federation of Transvaal in the Union of South Africa for non-theatrical use. He felt he won his victory when the government of the union itself wrote for permission to show it in schools and colleges.

Prints of "The King of Kings" are standard equipment for many missionaries. The Paulist Fathers carry their own generators and sound projectors to the Tennessee hills and show it in corn fields to people who have never seen movies before. During the war, army and navy chaplains took the prints into places where films were unknown. "The King of Kings" was the first sound movie ever seen by Eskimos at Point Barrow, Alaska.

Like most De Mille films, "The King of Kings" carries the mark of authenticity. He spent a year and a half on research, recreating the costumes and settings of the times. He wrote the script with the aid of a rabbi, priest and minister. He ordered thorns especially brought from the Holy Land for the crown of Christ. On the opening day of the production, a group gathered at the De Mille studio to bless the work. The group consisted of a Protestant bishop, a Jewish rabbi, a Roman Catholic priest, a Christian Science reader, pastors of the Presbyterian and Baptist churches in Hollywood, the commanding officer of the Salvation army, a teacher of the Mohammedan sect and a swami of the Buddhist faith.

De Mille extracted signed agreements from all his principal actors to stay away from parties and night clubs during the production period. He banned smoking on the lot.

When No Effort Is Held Too Great.

THE VALUE placed on a human life has been well illustrated by the herculean efforts made at San Marino, Calif., to rescue a three-year-old girl who had fallen into an abandoned well shaft which had carelessly been left unprotected against such an accident.

"Human nature," often held accountable for misconduct, is sometimes responsible for the finest behavior, as in the San Marino occurrence, where men and machinery went into action in the hope of saving one small child.

Hour after hour, day and night, the work was carried on, without thought of pay, and all over the country millions of people anxiously awaited word of progress of the rescue work, which proved futile.

An associated thought is the extent of accomplishments that would be made possible by similar show of interest in the welfare of children BEFORE their lives are endangered, as in cases of traffic hazards, fires and other ways in which children are imperiled.

Solemn Observance of Holy Week

THE SEASON of Lent reaches its climax with Holy Week, which started with yesterday's observance of Palm Sunday, the day on which Jesus rode into Jerusalem amidst the cheers of the multitude. It will conclude with the joyous feast of Easter.

During the Last Week, Jesus carried on against those by whom his death was sought. He lamented the failures which he saw all about him. He went at eventide into the peace of the countryside, and there he spent Wednesday. The trial day came, the betrayal, the surrender, the crucifixion, the darkness before dawn as despair seized the hearts of the disciples, and then the resurrection.

Men of good will the world over will observe Holy Week in meditation upon the ways of God in manifesting His love for the children of earth. It would be well if during this week all the people could submit their cares to the test of faith which the events of the first Holy Week laid upon the followers of Jesus. It would be a crowning experience of the 40 days of Lent and a fitting approach to the radiance of Easter.

Dividing Germany Into Two Parts

NOTHING FINAL seems to have been accomplished by last week's agreement to split Germany into two parts—with ideas of the United States, Great Britain and France being carried out in the western section and Russia dictating in its eastern zone.

Anything done thus far in the attempted rehabilitation of Germany, including the present move, must be regarded as experimental, with success or failure largely dependent on extent of co-operation of the German people.

When Germany collapsed in 1945 it was assumed that the four great powers—including Russia—could work harmoniously in the occupation program which provided for temporary division of the conquered country into four zones, one each assigned to the U. S., Great Britain, France and Russia.

Intent was to get Germany back on its feet, economically and politically, and to eventually permit restoration of a self-governing Germany, guarding only against rebuilding of military strength.

But the plan failed. Instead of working together economically, the zones were working separately, with trade barriers between them, and an immediate clash developed between Russia and the Western powers as to kind of government Germany should be permitted to establish.

This tension has continued, with Berlin as the focal point for dissension, and it was not until now that differences among the Western allies were ironed out to the point of agreement on policies to be followed in the combined zones, which include 11 of Germany's 16 states, with five in the Russian zone.

The outcome of this experiment will be awaited with interest, and deep concern, as the internal affairs of Germany, and the contending forces at work there, are far from encouraging.

Favor Voluntary Insurance Plans

OPPOSITION to compulsory health insurance continues to grow—and much of it comes from groups which have no financial or other such interest in the matter. As an example, several state legislatures have gone formally on record against government domination, in whole or in part, of the practice of medicine in this country.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, which has a very large membership among farmers of the United States, has also adopted this position. It affirmed its support to the extension of voluntary plans, even as it opposed compulsion. Then it said: "We believe that voluntary programs result in better medical service in greater volume than will be provided in any compulsory programs and, at the same time, will do much to develop individual self-reliance and independence."

Viewed purely from the perspective of performance, government medicine has proved a failure everywhere it has been tried.

As Claude Callan views it: "When we lecture young people we want them to profit by our mistakes, but of course if we had our lives to live over we would make the same pleasant mistakes again."

The Kansas City Star quips: "There are those who sigh over slave labor abroad, while others are contemplating raising a fund to get Inez Robb out of Texas."

At spring housecleaning time in the trailer camp the wife is expected to ask hubby to take the house downtown to have it cleaned.

Word comes that the cost of feeding inmates of Sing Sing prison has dropped three cents a day—and they also enjoy security.

In spite of all the ways to produce and distribute maple syrup, it seems as if nobody ever gets enough of it.

What Some Other People Are Saying

PRESIDENT TRUMAN: "I never in my life ran for office that the Democrats didn't have a deficit to start with, and wind up with a deficit when they got through."

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT: "I'm not afraid of communism. I think of course, that communism, of you don't recognize it is dangerous, but we should recognize it by now, and anything you know, is not dangerous."

BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY BEVIN, departing for England: "It's been a great week's work in the history of the world."

Merely a Suggestion, of Course.

The Irish Home Rule bill was introduced by the British premier on April 11, 1912. It was introduced by the Irish Nationalists.

Frankly Speaking

Calling All Senators!

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — It must be magic. Vice President Barkley looks out over the Senate. Not enough senators there. He orders the bells rung. All over the Capitol Senate bells ring.

Senators come skating in through the swinging doors and sit down. Barkley tells the clerk to call the roll.

There are 96 members of the Senate but when the clerk gets through he says only 49 of them are present.

Barkley announces there are 49 Senators present. Then the magic starts.

The next day the Congressional Record comes out and says that when the roll was called 89 Senators were present. And it quotes Barkley as saying 89 were present.

This burns Barkley up. He knows what he said. He said only 49 were present.

So he gives the Senate a large piece of his mind, dead serious. He says:

"The record shows that 89 Senators answered to their names, and that the Chair (meaning Barkley) had said that 89 Senators had answered to their names."

"That was not true. The Chair did not say there were 89 Senators who answered to their names because that name was not true, and the Chair authorized nobody to change the record to make the Chair say there were 89 Senators present when there were only 49 Senators present."

Must Show Cause

HOW COME? A senator can't divide himself in half like a ham sandwich and be two places at one time.

If a senator is not in the Senate at roll call, he must be some place else. But if he's some place else, how can the record say he's in the Senate?

Easy. He can come in later and get somebody like the clerk to mark him down as present when he wasn't present.

And that's what must have happened because Barkley goes on and tells the Senate:

"The Chair realizes that the habit has grown up of placing the names of senators on the roll call and the clerk at the desk tell the Chair that sometimes the sheet is kept at the desk two or three hours after the roll call in order that senators who come in later may have their names recorded."

But no more, Barkley says—

Viewing the National Scene

'Day of Silence' Advised

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON — The generals have been sounding off quite a lot recently, scaring us well-nigh to death. But they really opened up, with all stops out, as they took time off from their offices on Army day last week, mounted stumps here and there with the brass clinking, pulled out their manuscripts bristling with frightening phrases, and let the oratory roll with the ominous thunder of war drums.

Despite all the noise and furor, there were two factors which might offer some consolation to the war-weary and peace-hungry citizen who is the target of much of this high-pressure psychological warfare and, if this particular citizen is any example getting sickened and disgusted with it.

One was the announcement that hereafter there will be only one day a year set aside for the parades and speeches, which will be known as "Armed Services Day," instead of the four we had yearly for Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force. The reason is to promote the idea of unity in the services which is a good one.

But it will have the added blessing of giving the citizen only one day of the sort of oratorical to which he has been subjected for four days hitherto, which is a distinct gain, especially in these times of tension.

It might be a good idea also to have every year a day of "silence," which might be called "Peace day," on which the citizen could pick up his newspaper and listen to his radio and watch his television without reading or hearing about or seeing a single soldier, tank, airplane, rocket ship, warship or fiery speech from a general or admiral.

A "Silence week" would be still better if it would be possible to squeeze one in among all the weeks for this and that which we already observe every year. And it would help to start it soon as an antidote to all the military stuff crammed down us in recent weeks.

Purpose Is Explained.

THE OTHER consoling factor in the Army display was that some of the military seem to have become conscious of the criticism of the gunplay and cries of alarm and the way the military has been throwing its weight around in a manner unseemly in peacetime for a government supposedly in charge of civilians—or, at least there was a hopeful sign in some of the things in their manuscripts.

For example, General Lawton J. Collins, vice-chief of staff, in his speech at Pittsburgh: "Our foreign policy is not made, and should not be made, by the Army."

That's good to hear. It would appear that the caustic criticism of Herbert Hoover's commission or reorganization of the government might have had some effect.

The commission's task force report on the national defense establishment said the military had been arrogating to itself too much influence in the field of policy.

Then there was General Albert C. Wedemeyer who, in a speech before the Union League club in Philadelphia, had the grace to admit that he might be charged with preaching a doctrine of fear in some of the things he said before that group.

This was a recognition, at least, of the sort of psychology that seems to be the aim from what has been going on in recent weeks.

Then he admitted and excused this approach, thus:

"A powerful nation is using fear to intimidate neighboring peoples and to hold satellites in submission. We are therefore compelled to employ fear of inexorable retribution against that powerful nation if we are to stop her arrogant and ruthless aggression."

As Cerf Tells It

After digesting some recent and familiar sounding speeches by Soviet bigwigs in which totalitarianism was glibly defined as "democracy in its purest form," Quentin Reynolds pointed out that there is more of Alice in Wonderland than there is of Karl Marx in the official Russian 1949 "line." It was to Alice herself that Humpty Dumpty explained scornfully, "When I use a word, it means just what I choose it to mean."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Resolution To Probe Lobbyists Stymied

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The late and lamented 80th Congress was widely publicized as one of the most lobby-ridden in many years and probably deserved that reputation.

When it was thrown out of office last November, Democratic leaders announced that the 81st Congress would immediately start an investigation of lobbyists, and to that end conscientious Senator Kilgore introduced a resolution calling for a sweeping probe.

That resolution is still stalled in the Senate Judiciary committee where Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, Republican, is stalling a one-man filibuster in the subcommittee.

Meanwhile the new 81st Congress is just about as lobby-ridden as the old—possibly more so.

There is one big difference, however. This time the lobbyists have been smarter. They work in disguise. One device is to pressure a few key business friends in a congressman's home district. Another amazing device has just been uncovered.

Most senators and representatives don't realize it, but one of the most adroitly organized lobbies in Washington supplies them with an analysis and summary of pending bills every morning.

What most of the congressmen don't know is that this lobby is financed by some of the most powerful manufacturers in the USA, which means that big business has arranged to have its own nutshell digests of pending legislation placed on the desks of senators and representatives every morning.

Since congressmen are harassed and busy people, and since it is extremely difficult to keep up with all legislation, it is a great convenience to have legislation summarized and digested. However, any slanting of those digests or any questions asked in the memos accompanying the digests can influence the entire Congress on important issues.

Enterprise Association.

THE LOBBY which concocted this extremely clever way of swaying Congress has adopted the dignified and all-embracing name of the American Enterprise Association.

It also hides behind some high-sounding camouflage about being an "educational and non-partisan body . . . tries to be impartial in its work . . . takes no stand either in favor or against proposed legislative measures."

Yet its contributors and officers are some of the most influential big businessmen in the country, most of whom support the militant National Association of Manufacturers and the Foundation for Economic Education, crusaders against rent control, aid to education, the national health program and other measures which might increase corporation taxes.

Inside Martin's Office.

GUIDING genius of the American Enterprise Association is Guy Wyatt, former advertising sales manager of American Foundry Equipment. The association's Washington representative is Malcolm Hardgrove, formerly with the Irving Trust Company at No. 1 Wall Street.

Hardgrove is not registered as a lobbyist yet he admitted to this column that he visits "twenty to fifty" members of Congress daily.

He also seems to be about as skillful at getting his ideas across to Congress and getting information out of congressmen as anyone in the game.

Among other things Hardgrove pays a Negro in the office of ex-Speaker Joe Martin, named William Patten, to slip him material. Patten, when interviewed, admitted slipping material to Hardgrove, but swore it was stuff Martin was "through with."

Patten also admitted taking cash for the job but wouldn't say how much. Other sources indicated that Hardgrove slipped the Negro $20 from time to time and charged it up on his expense account as a "contribution."

This astute backstage wire-puller also has a close friend in Joe Martin's office who arranges contacts with other congressmen: He is the ex-Speaker's assistant, Jim Milne.

Real Estate Lobby.

ACTUALLY Hardgrove not only influences congressional thinking by analyzing pending legislation for congressmen but writes speeches for them and furnishes them with various material.

He also has secret ties with the real estate lobby through Eddie Carr, former president of the National Association of Home Builders, and used to meet on the q. t. with the real estate committee, made up of Carr, Waverly Taylor, Clark Daniel and Joe Deckman, all big builders.

This group wanted Hardgrove to handle "public relations" against the Taft housing bill, rent control, slum clearance etc.

However, Hardgrove couldn't afford to get tied up with the real estate lobby openly and discussed running the show for them through a front man. Later the idea was dropped.

The American Enterprise Association usually plays the Republican side of Congress but it also has been smart enough to woo friends on the Democratic side. In fact, it has done one of the cleverest jobs this columnist has ever seen in many years of keeping check on lobbyists.

Perhaps the lobby's Democratic friends are one reason why Senator Kilgore's resolution to probe all lobbying doesn't even get out of the judiciary committee.

More about the lobby's links with the Democrats will follow in a later column.

Farmer's Diary

Walking 'Through Wet'

By CALVIN A. BYERS

I PASSED a farmer walking in the rain. His boots were wet and heavy with mud. A black cloud rolled along, and warm rain poured again, in sudden showers.

He looked up and smiled, with the water streaming off the notched brim of his old felt hat. I saw a clear stream running down his weathered neck. He would soon be soaked, and he was delighting in it!

I have known many farm men who felt glad to be "through wet" with warm rain, spring or fall. There seems to be a hardy, earthy satisfaction in it. "Think what it'll mean to the oats I just put in," one farmer said. "So long as I keep moving, I won't take cold. Think I'll just work at the barn until I get dried off and warm—if I go in the house my wife'll make me change from the skin out, and I can't spare the time."

Farmers are funny fellows perhaps. But they're mostly kind, with a fellow-feeling for other living creatures. I have seen the thrifty farmers talk to humming birds or bees, save the lives of young rabbits when the plowshare found their home; plow around pheasant nests and keep a brooding turkey's secrets.

Working out in the fields every day, a man gets to be part of the natural scene, in his mind as well as in his body.

He learns hope and faith and wealth is not often his greatest obsession. He knows reverence for powers greater than himself and Nature's laws are full of dignity and order.

The farmer who is most obedient to the laws of Nature is the one who succeeds best. The most modern methods of conservation farming are "scientific"—which means just "know-how"—based upon successful experiment. I guess scientists and farmers experience God's laws better than most anybody. Their life and work depend upon faith and a strange earthy mixture of humility and daring.

Emerson has said, "When a man walks with God, his voice becomes as sweet as the murmur of the brook or the rustle of the mellow corn." "And when I am stretched beneath the pines Where the evening star so holy shines,

I laugh at the lore and the pride of man, At the sophist schools and the learned clasp

For what are they all in their high conceit When man in the bush with God may meet?

But they don't explain why they went from 1919 to 1949 without developing television unless they were waiting for pictures to come through in red.

Pact Neither Spurs Nor Delays War

The pact that was signed a week ago today will be remembered long after the conditions that have provoked it are no longer the main business of mankind. For the treaty recognizes and proclaims a community of interest which is much older than the conflict with the Soviet Union and, come what may, will survive it. The peoples who live around the shores of the Atlantic are many nations, but they are also one of the great and enduring communities of the modern age. They are competitors, they have been serious rivals, and are still rivals. They have been at war.

But the wisest of their leaders have always known, and events have proved them right, that when the issue was life or death, they would stand or fall together.

The proof that the Atlantic community is not a temporary diplomatic and strategic contraption for dealing with Russia lies in the fact that the natural alliance of the Atlantic nations has already been tested in two gigantic wars, and that neither of them was against Russia.

Indeed in both of these wars the Atlantic nations were the allies of Russia, and therefore whatever the Russians may think of us now and we of them, it is the truth which no one can deny that the Atlantic community is not necessarily and cannot be solely a coalition against Russia.

Seen this way, the pact itself does not make better or worse our relations with Russia, make war less or more probable. I do not myself think there is much to the claim that war will be prevented because we have announced formally that we shall go to war if there is an armed attack. The Soviet government knew that without a pact.

It has never entertained the illusion that it could go to war against France or Britain, Norway or Italy, while the United States debated whether it would intervene. Quite the contrary. The Soviets have been insisting for at least three years that we were the head and front of a coalition against them. Far from imagining, as Hitler did, that we might be neutral, they accuse us day in and day out of preparing and fomenting a war.

Nor is there much, I think, in the idea that the pact as such, and the military program which is to support it, will make war more probable. It will certainly not make us more warlike to realize, as we shall when the bill to prepare against war comes before Congress, that a war with Russia would be no thirty-day affair of atomic bombs and a few airplane crews.

Nor can it fail to make our diplomacy more and more responsible to have to consult fully before we take a position—as we are now obligated to do under

See Boost In Census

WASHINGTON—The 1940 census is expected to show a U. S. population of 150,000,000 persons—up around 19,000,000 from the 1940 census of 131,669,275.

This forecast was made by J. S. Capt. director of the census bureau, in outlining plans for the 17th decennial census. He appeared at a House appropriations subcommittee hearing.

The 1950 census, to be conducted between April 1 and June next year, will be the bureau's biggest such job since its first national nose-count in 1790.

About 150,000 to 160,000 enumerators will be required for the four-part job of getting figures on population, agriculture, and related matters.

John W. Bowden, 34½ West Arch street, has been promoted to field sales manager of the Vitality Mills, Inc., of Chicago, according to an announcement by A. C. Adams, general sales manager.

Bowden will have charge of all sales training and supervision of sales representatives throughout the firm's entire sales staff, Adams said. He formerly was sales representative in charge of the northwestern Ohio territory.

Although Vitality Mills' sales force operates in all of the 48 states and many foreign countries, Bowden will continue to make his headquarters in Mansfield.

the pact—our Allies on the European continent who would, if war came, have to fight on the ground and not in the stratosphere where the B-36's are at home.

What will determine the outcome will not be the pact, nor even the solidarity which it promotes, but the policy which the Atlantic nations acting as a community take with respect to the great areas of dispute in Central and Eastern Europe and in the Middle East. If there is to be a war, the Russians will not start it for the purpose of conquering any of the nations that have signed the pact. If there is war, it will be about the control of regions which are not inside the pact—primarily about Germany, and secondarily about Eastern Europe, the Balkans, and the Middle East.

The pact, because it binds the Atlantic nations together, will mean that in the diplomatic showdown and the negotiations, which must soon begin, the Western governments must now act together and can no longer act separately.

It will, henceforth, be a violation of the spirit, and indeed the letter of the pact, for American military government in Germany, or for the British Foreign Office, or for the French, to insist upon or to carry out separately, any serious policy in Germany which has not been worked out together by the members of the pact.

The same rule will hold in Eastern Europe and the Middle East, for ourselves, the British and the French, for an alliance which binds us all to go to war if there is war binds us all to make together any decision that could lead to war.

Today's Garden Graph Plan for 2-Crop Raspberries

SEPTEMBER AN AUTUMN-FRUITING RED RASPBERRY

HILL SYSTEM

By DEAN HALLIDAY (By Central Press)

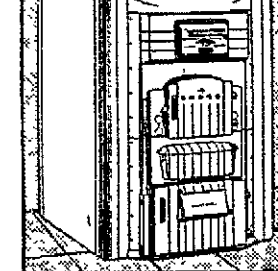

Plant breeders have been making steady progress in making red raspberries redder and more appetizing to the taste. They have also produced new and improved varieties that have greater resistance to disease, notably mosaic and wilt.

The increasing popularity of home freezing of the fruit has also led the plant wizards to come up with varieties suitable for growing over a wider area. Now there are two-crop raspberries. These produce a summer crop, as do standard varieties, but their chief advantage lies in the fall crop.

One of the best of the new introduction is called September. It bears a first crop in late June and the second and best crop in September and October.

The round, bright red berries are illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. They are good-sized, sweet and of fine flavor. They are also firm and do not crumble.

Another two-crop raspberry introduced in recent years is Indian Summer. Its summer crop ripens toward the end of June and the fall crop starts about mid-September and continues until stopped by freezing weather in November.

Many home gardeners now use the hill system in planting raspberries. The plants are usually set five by five feet apart each way, with a stake set in the middle of each hill as illustrated.

Follow good neighbor Reece Around the Clock

From 4 to midnight, Sanford M. Reece works at a South Bend radio station—the high spot of his busy day's program!

You'll see how to get a lot of living out of 24 hours of day!

How to support a family in spite of high living costs . . . how to become a good neighbor in an "adopted city" . . . how to make the kids tolerant, useful citizens—These were the problems that faced Sandy Reece when he moved to South Bend, Indiana, four years ago.

To solve them would be a large order. And like everyone else, he had only 24 hours a day to do it! Was there a way to make every minute count? Could he find time to earn extra money, help out in community projects, be a good father, too . . . ?

From 9 to noon, Sandy writes radio shows at home. Such free-lance jobs, plus extra broadcasts, radio writing class at Notre Dame, add $1250 a year to his regular pay as announcer. Wife Ginny handles files, helps schedule his time.

Afternoons, Sandy devotes time to his town! He helped arrange YMCA's adult education program, produced school pageant. "Working with your neighbors, you feel more at home," he says.

"Puppet time" for Sandra and Buddy! They're making puppets of their own, and planning a show for neighborhood kids! The Reeces believe that doing things as a family helps the children feel secure.

Between his shows at the radio station, Sandy is active in South Bend's little theatre group. It's a big source of inexpensive fun for him and Ginny. A drama major when he was at college, Sandy directs, Ginny acts, they build the stage sets together . . . and South Bend citizens get good plays!

Like their hours, they "stretch" their money! By such things as smart use of leftovers, Ginny feeds the whole family on $20 a week. House costs $65 a month. Their life insurance program is budgeted at $60 a month. It was planned with their life insurance agent to include "college fund" for Sandra, Buddy and little Robin. By planning this future for his family and arranging his time to do more than just his job, Sandy Reece is a good neighbor—and a good citizen!

Time for fun with the kids is in Sandy's program too! He's an amateur movie fan. In time to come, his family hopes the novel he's writing will be a best-seller!

THE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES AND THEIR AGENTS

The Reeces, like other American families, prove to all of us that the only way we really solve our problems is by our own efforts!

These stories of real families much like yours also show how much more success, how much more happiness is possible when you have peace of mind . . . the sort of peace of mind that comes from wise management of money now, and from knowing that future security has been adequately provided for.

The Life Insurance Companies and their Agents bring you these American family close-ups because what this country amounts to depends upon what happens to its homes!

Senate to Decide Tonight on Probe of Rural Telephones

Sen. Winter Asks 10-Man Investigation

Budget Will Be Studied Tuesday

COLUMBUS — (AP)—The Ohio Senate may decide tonight whether it believes an investigation of rural telephone service is appropriate at this time.

It will have up for consideration a resolution sponsored by Senator Ralph A. Winter (R-Medina), representing Richland county, calling for the appointment of a ten-member legislative committee to inquire into the adequacy of the service. The resolution also would require House approval.

A bill to require rural telephone lines to carry not more than eight subscribers now is pending before the House. It is sponsored by Rep. Robert W. Reider (D-Ottawa).

The house finance committee is scheduled to start Tuesday morning consideration of Gov. Frank J. Lausche's $649,461,445 budget measure and it is understood legislative leaders are planning that the senate finance committee also start consideration of the measure instead of waiting until the house has passed the bill.

Such procedure would have the effect of shortening the legislative session.

BUDGET TO STAND

Though it is anticipated that many governmental departments will besiege the finance committee for increases in their allotments, it generally is anticipated there will be little change in the final finance bill from that recommended by the governor.

Both the school and municipal government lobbies are expected to ask the committees for increased allotments for schools and local governments.

Representatives of the municipalities are to meet in Niles Thursday to discuss the budget. It is expected that plans will be formulated at the meeting for launching a campaign for increased allotments over and above the $12,000,000 annually allotted by the budget.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson also is expected to ask the committees to increase his allotments. The budget ignores his request for $653,762 to make initial audits of the sales tax, unemployment compensation, state fair, old age pension trust funds, welfare institutions, industrial commission and police and firemen's relief and pension funds.

The budget, however, grants him $76,870 more than he had requested for administration of his department, evidently to take care of additional audits requested by him.

The house highway committee is scheduled to begin hearings Wednesday night on the toll turnpike bill sponsored by Senator Winter. It already has senate approval. The bill is designed to permit the construction of a toll turnpike in Ohio to join with the present Pennsylvania toll turnpike.

Mr. Apsolon also leaves three sisters, Mrs. Rose Ungbary, and Mrs. Frank Szakany of Cleveland and Mrs. Mary Barton of Florida, and a brother, John in Europe.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. at St. Peter's Catholic church with the Rev. R. C. Goebel officiating. Burial will be in St. Peter's Catholic cemetery. The body will be at the Wapner funeral home until time for services.

Little Kathy Found Drowned After 52-Hour Rescue Effort

the water level. Besides, they reasoned, the well had been abandoned as dry.

But when the rescue team of Kelly and H. E. (Whitey) Blickensderfer dug through mud and water and cut into the pipe, they found Kathy lay below, not above the cut.

We cut a window 12 inches by 22 in the iron shell of the well," said Kelly, who required doctor's care later. "She was in an upright position below us when we pulled the sheet away."

Kelly said he and Blickensderfer broke between eight and 10 cutting wheels on their electric drills before breaking through the tough old casing. Blickensderfer went to a hospital after the job of freeing the body was finished.

The actual discovery and determination of death were made some two hours before the announcement was made public. Engineer Raymond A. Hill, supervising operations, clamped on the secrecy ban. Later it was explained this was "to ease the blow for the parents."

CROWD GETS WORD

To the crowd pressed 30 deep against fences and police ropes bordering the field, came finally an announcement over the public address system. Dr. Paul Hanson, friend of the family, said:

"Kathy is dead and has apparently been dead since she was last heard speaking on Friday."

"Her family has been notified and we are now notifying you."

He then read a message from the family:

"There is nothing we can say to fully thank the many people who have helped us so unselfishly. Many of these people have gone home to much-needed rest. Our heartfelt gratitude goes out to them for their sacrifices beyond belief."

The parents had received the news at home. And soon the crowd, numbering hundreds of other parents, began breaking up silently.

Thus culminated the most concerted rescue attempt of an individual since Floyd Collins was trapped fatally in a Kentucky cave in 1925. That lasted days, this hours that seemed like days.

It started after Kathy, running a footrace with her elder sister, Barbara, nine, and a cousin, Gus Lyon, five, fell behind in the dash across the vacant lot on the corner of her block. When the older children turned around, there was no Kathy.

They called and looked, and Gus almost fell into the concealed well-hole himself when he heard a faint scream coming up from below. The kids ran for their mothers.

Mrs. Fiscus called to her youngest. Frenzied screams, "Yes, yes, yes," came up in answer to all the mother's questions.

The fire department and police were summoned. A rope was dropped and Kathy tried to grip it. But she couldn't fasten it around herself as firemen hoped. The rope went loose as Kathy slipped into her tomb.

Top Human Interest Story of All Time

SAN MARINO, Calif. — (AP)—The world forgot its troubles for a week-end to worry—and pray—for a little girl.

And when Kathy Fiscus—

pretty, blonde and three—was found dead some two days after she fell 100 feet down an old well, most of the world mourned genuinely.

For human interest it ranked as one of the greatest such stories of all time.

Seldom since the 1925 fatal trapping of Floyd Collins in a Kentucky cave had a story so captured the feelings—and hopes—of so many people.

But this one had more human appeal. Collins was a grown man. Kathy was Kathy—tiny and helpless like any child of three.

Newspapers in Stockholm and London and Australia held presses for news of Kathy—as did those of nearly Los Angeles. This was more than a local banner headline.

Switchboards at newspaper offices and radio stations everywhere were jammed with calls from the moment the child's plight first became known.

In Chicago, it brought the greatest number of phone calls to that city's newspapers since the end of World War II. Operators said callers expressed genuine anxiety.

Only behind the hardened iron curtain—in Czechoslovakia—was the story snubbed.

The Czech government news agency banned the story as without educational value and purely sensational.

Shasteen Twins Dead at Birth

The infant twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Leo D. Shasteen, 648 Burns street, died at birth Sunday morning at General hospital.

Graveside services were to be held at the Mansfield Memorial park today at 3 p. m. in charge of Rev. A. J. Staats, pastor of the Free Methodist church. Arrangements are in charge of the Wapner funeral home.

Ex-Marine Dies In Bucyrus Yard After Taking Poison

BUCYRUS—Police reported today that Norman Lee Alexander, 19, committed suicide by taking rat poison after being thwarted in a suicide attempt yesterday.

The victim, an employee of the Swan Rubber company, who made his home with his sister, Mrs. Pearl See, at 517 Woodlawn avenue, was found in the front yard of the residence at 5:45 a. m. today. Dr. O. R. Kackley, Crawford county coroner from Gallon, said he had been dead about two hours and termed the death suicide. Despondency over ill health was blamed for the act.

Police yesterday were informed by Harold Kunkle, 25, of 112 North Spring street, that Kunkle had noticed a young man stop his car, open its trunk and crawl into it. Investigation revealed the young man had two candy bars and a tube of poison. Kunkle took the poison from the man but failed to get the license number. Police today said it was Alexander.

Alexander had received a medical discharge from the Marines 15 months ago and had moved in with his sister after securing employment here. He was born in Rocky Mount, N. C. He also is survived by his parents, Reid Alexander of Rocky Mount, N. C., and his mother, Mrs. Minnie Deaton of Fort Devens, Mass.

Asks Donors Give Names

George H. Smith, chairman of the advisory board of the Salvation Army, today asked Mansfielders who send cash contributions to the Salvation Army drive to enclose their names. Smith said the organization wants to give credit to contributors and cannot do so in cases where cash is sent without identification of the donor.

Approximately $600 has been raised in the $15,000 drive for rehabilitating the Salvation Army's present building. The campaign got underway last week with the mailing of 1,700 letters asking for contributions.

Smith said all contributions so far have been made by persons who received the letters. Since some of the letters were not mailed until last Wednesday, he said he considered the response has been very good.

He urged other Mansfielders to make their contributions as soon as possible so that repairs on the building can get underway. Smith opens to complete the drive by April 20.

Rev. Gensel said the summer schedule was approved by the church council.

"Many of the city churches are doing this for the summer months and we decided to give it a try," Rev. Gensel said.

MISS DONNA ISAMAN WED TO MARTIN R. BEMILLER

Formal Ceremony Solemnized Sunday
Afternoon at the First Christian Church.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON at 2 o'clock in the First Christian church Miss Donna Louise Isaman became the bride of Martin Reign Bemiller. The Rev. Benjamin F. Hagelbarger officiated for the double ring ceremony before an altar beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and two beauty baskets of spring flowers. Two seven branch candelabra lighted the scene.

Mrs. H. H. Clingan presided at the organ for the nuptial music and Mrs. Bruce Rogers was the soloist.

Miss Isaman, accompanied to the altar by her father, wore a gown of white slipper satin. It was made with princess style lines with a sweetheart neckline. The sleeves came to points over the hands. The skirt fell into a short train. A finger tip veil was held in place with a crown of beaded pearls. The bride's mother made the gown for her daughter.

The bride carried a white Bible topped with a lavender orchid and white streamers.

Miss Carolyn Bemiller, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Susan Isaman, niece of the bride were the bridesmaids. They wore gowns styled alike of marquisette and taffeta. Miss Bemiller's gown was of yellow marquisette and Miss Isaman wore blue taffeta. They were made with sweetheart necklines and full ruffled skirts. Their headpieces were of blue and yellow.

A bouquet of blue iris and yellow roses was carried by Miss Bemiller. Miss Isaman's floral arrangement was of yellow roses.

The Fashion Spy Glass

There once was a saying, originated by the famous wit, Dorothy Parker, that "men seldom make passes at girls who wear glasses," but those days are gone forever, thanks to those energetic makers of the new eye glass frames.

Statistics show that 67.3 per cent of us, the majority that is, wear specs (and are happily married, Miss Parker to the contrary) so it was about time the frame makers did a little something for us. But, we have no complaints this year. Some of the new frames are so attractive, that the writer of this column, who has perfect vision, was downright envious of women who needed glasses and could have their pick of the delicious assortment of frames.

Glasses today are gay and good looking and should and can be an important asset to your smart appearance. The fad for "harlequins" has mercifully vanished and now the modified "honey" and "hussey" shapes are riding high and are suitable for almost any shape face, and oh, the colors and designs they come in!

You can have your frames in a pearl design of baby blue and pink, any plaid color combination, white or black lace imprisoned in transparent lucite, or silver and gold thread running through a solid color. There are checks in every combination and a gold trim on a tortoise shell frame. There are frames in every conceivable solid color and practically every color combination and something new has just hit the market that may solve many fashion problems.

It's called the "chameleon" and is a transparent frame that comes with a little leather kit. In the kit are the plastic markings of almost any color to snap on to your frame and thus eliminate the problem of glasses clashing with your clothes. The kit includes white, yellow, green, gold, silver, blue and a rainbow effect of all colors. They come in little slivers of plastic that snap right on to the "chameleon" transparent frame. Very smart idea, we think.

There are new aluminum frames that come in colors that plastic could never approximate. We saw these in dusky rose and dull gold, and a beautiful shade of blue. For some reason the colors worked out in these aluminum frames seemed more neutral to us, than the plastic ones.

Let's never hear anyone complaining that they have to wear glasses and thus spoil their appearance. Glasses today are an asset to your appearance and, if chosen wisely will call attention to the attractive features of your face that were never noticed before.

Blend creamed cottage cheese with mayonnaise or creamy-type salad dressing and serve over wedges of lettuce; sprinkle with finely cut pimento-stuffed olives.

a water ballet will be presented by the students of Barry College of Miami. Juniors will also hold an all-day session on Monday.

Preceding the morning business sessions of the convention, chairmen will hold work conferences for the attendant delegates. Early morning classes in parliamentary law, public speaking and youth conservation will be held each day also. All convention activities will be held in the Hollywood Beach Hotel, which is convention headquarters.

YOUNG AND GAY . . . This is the way to wear your veil if you wear glasses, says Fred Fredericks, who designed the youthful hat of black shiny straw.

Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
For Tuesday, April 12
IT might be difficult to keep from bungling matters of more than usual significance by a rash, hasty, confused and involved state of mind, in which frustrated and curious circumstances may be rendered more complicated. A juvenile or adolescent judgment or routine could bring to a head problems demanding mature consideration. Make no moves under emotional or supersensitive urges. Face facts and realistic demands. Young people are particularly susceptible to making false moves under such stress.
For the Birthday
Those whose birthday it is, may have to face very realistic situations, with major decisions coming up for prompt and prudent management, in which critical issues present strange angles or involvements. Cultivate ability to face realistic and practical circumstances in which feelings and emotions are under grave impetus to do the wrong thing or to act in a flighty, erratic and quixotic mood. Real values could be discounted or actualities bungled by reckless or ill considered gestures, unless curbed and analysed from a mature point of view. Dreams may be made to come true by honest and practical judgment and shrewd administration.

A child born on this day may be swayed by impulse, erratic or juvenile want of realism, making errors and inviting complications by its over-optimistic or childish viewpoint.

Just Ask Ann

Next Sunday's Easter bunnies will be hopping their way through every house, filling the baskets. And Sunday morning the Richland County Christian Youth Council is sponsoring the annual sunrise service.

Girls, such a thing to do! Shirley Scott, Norma Kunkel, Joan Roberts, Norma Long and Betty Strolein cut school last week. The result: twelve detentions from Miss Danback. I wouldn't worry too much about that happening again. I hear the girls were really scared when they were called into the office. The reason Pat Sharrack, Doris Copper, Barbara Hoff, Jane Copper, Tim Keplar and Harry Copper jr. were out of school Friday is that they all attended a youth conference being held in Cleveland. It was in session at the Cleveland Bible college.

Say, girls, have you invited anyone to the Blue Tri formal, yet? You know it's the 23rd and that's not too, too far in the future. . . . Doris Copper has her date all lined up. He's Glenwood Kohler. Doris will attend the Hi-Y formal with Russ Barnes. . . . The Hi-Y affair will be held the 30th. Such rivalry as to which group will have the largest crowd.

Here's wishing the junior and senior boy and girl ensembles good luck when they compete in a state music contest in Columbus. Soloist for the group will be Jean Mauer, Gracann Fogle, Jean A. Robinson Clarence Mason and Doris Brouch. Marty Shiplet will accompany them. . . . It seems that the track team is really stomping on the other teams this year. . . . Phil Bolin, Bob Ward, Harry McCune and Dave Stanton really did some favorable work in the one-act play, "Afraid of the Dark."

Next Monday the majority of colleges will close their doors for the week's Easter vacation. That should bring together several parties and get-togethers. . . . Plans are in the making as to what Al-mareta Mastandrea and Joy Chitwood will do when their steadys come home from the service in May. Joy, a new arrival in Mansfield, goes with Bo Baker. . . . Kell, kids, have fun this last week before your vacation. But if you think that day will never arrive, just remember "everything comes to he who waits long enough."
